
Title: The Mages Creed

Author: Mavara

All who train under the guidance of the Elders of our society in the ways of magery must take the ancient creed of the mages, set forth by the Matriarchs in their wisdom of eons past. The creed is a solemn and sacred vow, and to take it lightly or mock it is a serious offense against those who have abided by it and let it's guidance watch over them.

The Creed of the Mage

In the wisdom of the Matriarchs and the blessings of Meerkind, I shall strive to use my magic for the betterment of our people and our world, and never for the sole advantage of myself. I shall strive to use my magic as judiciously and cleanly as possible, never stealing violently from the void which grants us our strengths but borrowing and accepting that which it gives freely. I shall strive to honor my ancestors and their sacrifices, to honor my trainer and master, and to honor my family through the use of my magic. I shall strive to never tarnish the traditions that I have inherited from my lineage, and I shall strive to bring glory and pride to my family.